Thrilling Experience of Barque Abbie
Palmer in Storm in Which Conductor
Was Lost.

A letter from T. J. Johnson, at Algon Bay, master of the barque Abbie Palmer, gives a most thrilling account of that vessel's battle for life in the terrible gales of December 2nd and 3rd last, in which H. M. S. Condon and the cooler Mattawan went to their graves. Trouble was brewing when she stood out from the land, but it was no time to turn back, and she was put to it to make the best of it. A sou'wester that had been blowing all day with ever increasing force, was a young gale by nightfall, and as the hours wore on its age gave it almost hurricane strength. Things had been smugged down in preparation for the fight that was at hand. The barque held on with her lower foremast still until it threatened to part company with the bolt ropes, and this finally had to be clewed up. Morning found the Palmer stripped to a main spar, and even this was too much for her. It was gotten off just as the wind struck her a smash on the port side and hove her down to her hatch combings. The deckload lashings parted at this juncture, and wind and wave picked up 25,000 feet of lumber and scattered it broadcast.

The vessel lay wallowing in gale and water most of the day. Every one on board realized that death might be only a matter of moments, and they began to make for the lifeboats. Crew and officers were gathered all near the wheel, waiting for "something to happen." The sea was furious. Suddenly the skipper gave a yell for every man to look out for himself. He saw it coming—a great brute of a green comb, with a breaking mane of white. He figured that it would be all over in a minute more, for it looked as though it were going to take the battered craft clean on the beam, and hove down as she was there could be only one ending. On it came, faster and faster, but as it approached the vessel, instead of smashing where it was believed it would, it took her hull on the port bow. Oh she went with it and all hands gave a shout. She had steeved away again, and not a second was lost in getting her heels to the sea and taking it full aboard. The Abbie never was smarter under a pack of canvas. Capt. Johnson kept her running, and under bare poles she made eight and a half and nine knots for the next eleven hours, when she landed herself out of the storm circle and found fairly good weather.

The Abbie Palmer is the vessel which collided with the Empress of Japan in the Straits last winter, and whose captain and crew spent several days in this city attending court.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The Queen, looking particularly well, presided on Friday at a meeting of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association in London. The announcement was the hospital fund, had given the Queen a similar sum, which Her Majesty desired to devote to the work of the association, and that the Queen's appeal in January had brought in $1,500,000, making the total public subscriptions to the association during and since the war, $5,500,000.

Warrants have been served by Sheriff Dawson, of Kingston, Ont., upon 28 striking machinists, making them defendants in a suit for $3,000 brought by the Canadian Locomotive Works Company, which also asks for an injunction to restrain the strikers from further interference with the company's employees. This action is the result of an attempt to induce three Scotch machinists to obtain work in Watertown, N. Y., a few days ago.

Crowning of the King and Queen

The Coronation of Their Majesties Took Place To-Day—Impressive Ceremony at Westminster Abbey—Scenes of Enthusiasm in the Streets of London.

(Associated Press.)
London, Aug. 9.—A brilliant sunrise promised perfect weather for Coronation Day, but long before the ceremonies commenced threatening clouds gathered and the early arrivals on the route of the procession came provided against contingencies. The earlier crowds were in no wise as large as it had been generally anticipated they would be. Many enthusiasts, with camp stools and simple supplies of provisions, had spent the night on the best columns of vantage that could be secured, and were in the same position at 6 o'clock this morning.

At that hour the troops began to take up their allotted stations, and policemen, three paces apart, lined the route of the procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey.

Up to 7 o'clock there were certainly more police than sight-seers visible, but after that hour there was

A Rapid Increase

In the number of spectators, suburban trains and tram cars emptying thousands of persons every few minutes into the stations adjacent to the procession's route. East End London residents also flocked westward in such numbers that the streets east of Temple Bar became oppressively silent and deserted.

Most of the best positions along the route of the procession were thickly crowded by 8 o'clock, and the spectators were furnished with plenty of diversion by the marching of the troops, headed by their bands and quickly crossing state coaches, private carriages and automobiles.

Buckingham Palace, naturally, was one of the principal centres of interest as it was the starting point of the great pageant. Crowds assembled there in immense numbers, and the first hearty cheer of the day went up when the news was circulated that King Edward was in the

and well equipped to undergo the fatigues of the day.

By 9:30 the scene in the vicinity of the Palace and the Mall was extremely animated. The roof of the Palace and those of all the surrounding buildings were crowded with spectators, and the constantly arriving members of the Royal family, with their suites, and the appearance of the other participants in the procession, elicited cheers varying in degree of enthusiasm according to the popularity of the personages recognized by the people.

The Duke of Connaught, who rode down the Mall in an automobile for the purpose of seeing that the military arrangements along the route were complete, was heartily cheered.

Almost as animated was the scene in the vicinity of Westminster Abbey, where bands of music stationed about the building

Relieved the Tedium of the Early Waiting, and soon after the doors were opened state coaches, carriages and automobiles, rattled up in a ceaseless line, the rich apparel of their occupants eliciting hearty approval, which, however, was surpassed by the reception accorded to the men of the naval brigade as they marched past at a swinging pace to take up a favored position guarding the route near the Abbey.

The Colonial Princes and the privy councillors were warmly welcomed, the Elijans, in petticoats, the centre of much interest, and a Red Indian chief, in his native costume, feathers, and blanket, decorated with the customary mirrors, caused the most lively amusement.

As the hour appointed for the departure of the Royal procession approached, the excitement about Buckingham Palace was most marked.

Punctual to the time the advance guard of issued from the archway, the horses of the troopers curvetting nervously as they faced the wall of humanity that cheered their coming. Shortly afterwards came the Prince and Princess of Wales's procession, and finally, within a few minutes their Majesties state coach appeared at the gateway, and the King and Queen smiled and bowed in response to the mighty roar of cheers that darted all previous successes. The scene in the vicinity was remarkable. On the roof of the Palace were perched a number of fashionably dressed ladies, members of the household, and their cheers with the fluttering of their handkerchiefs as the King and Queen entered the Royal coach gave the signal for the deafening plaudits of the populace which greeted their Majesties as they emerged from the gates.

The ovation was taken up by the crowds which thronged the Mall, and was repeatedly acknowledged by the occupants of the state coach.

AT THE ABBEY.

Scene on the Arrival of the King and Queen—The Ceremony.

The regalia was reconsecrated in the Abbey at 10 o'clock, the choir singing "Oh God, Our Help in Ages Past." The street barriers were closed at 10 o'clock. Prince Minister Balfour and Lord Rosebery were caught outside. They were obliged to alight from their carriages and walk to the Abbey. At 10 o'clock the King's nurses who attended him during his late illness drove up to the Abbey in a royal carriage as guests of His Majesty. They received an ovation from the crowd. The children of the Prince and Princess of Wales reached the Abbey at twenty minutes past ten, and were widely cheered by the enthusiastic throng.

The head of the procession Reached the Abbey at 10:50 a. m. The bells were pealed and the bands played "God Save the King." Ten minutes later the Prince and Princess of Wales arrived. The royal Princes, gorgeously dressed, entered the royal box of the Abbey at 10:10 a. m.

at midnight. The smoke was so dense that the steamer had great trouble in making the wharf. If a west wind prevailed, it was certain that the town would be burned.

The powder magazine at McConville's mine exploded early in the day, and much anxiety was felt for the Gray brothers, who were about the mine where much powder was stored. The fire was at the water's edge at Marble Bay and the line kiln is thought to be doomed.

President Hill, of the Great Northern, left Seattle early this morning for Westminster by a special train, and will meet Hon. W. C. Wells there this afternoon to discuss the question of terms over the bridge and other matters. From a statement in the News-Advertiser this morning it appears that the Great Northern is assuming practical control of Mr. Hendry's charter between here and Westminster, and that no favors will be asked in the way of land grants, terminals, etc.

A Woman Crushed to Death—J. J. Hill Will Confer With Hon. W. C. Wells at Westminster.

(Special to The Times.)
Vancouver, Aug. 8.—D. M. Morrison, logger, was drowned at Rock Bay yesterday.

Mrs. Menzies, of Burnaby, was killed last night by a tree falling on her. There was a bush fire in the vicinity, and her husband went out at midnight to investigate, when just at that moment a tree fell across the corner of the house, crushing the bed and killing the woman instantly.

A big bush fire last night threatened Van And, and residents were all up when the steamer Cassiar passed there

Their Majesties arrived at the Abbey at 11:15.

The Prince of Wales took his place in the Abbey, in a chair directly in front of the peers at 11:12 a. m. The children of the Prince and Princess of Wales in white sailor suits, who were the first occupants of the royal box, immediately after they were seated, buried their heads in the huge red programme.

As the King's procession emerged on the Horse Guards parade almost caused a catastrophe. The people thrust through the cord of troops and threatened to overwhelm the procession. Fortunately they were forced back and order was restored.

When the Prince of Wales was seated he placed his coronet at his feet. His robes were almost identical with those of the peers. The Princess was the cynosure of all the women in the Abbey.

The King and Queen entered the west door of the Abbey at 11:34 a. m., the choir singing "I Was Glad When They Said Unto Me."

Then began the impressive service in connection with the coronation of the King. The service, which as mentioned in these dispatches yesterday, had been considerably curtailed.

After the recognition of His Majesty in the Abbey had been completed the anointing ceremony took place, this portion of the proceedings being concluded at 12:27 p. m. The actual coronation of the King took place at 12:39 p. m.

The news of the coronation was announced by an official outside the Abbey. It was repeated by signal through London, and was received with cheers, which spread throughout the stands and crowds far up the streets, as the bells pealed joyfully.

The Queen was crowned at 12:56 p. m.

THE PROCESSION.

Some Changes Made in the Order of the Carriages.

London, Aug. 9.—The following changes were made in the programme of the street procession. In the first carriage Princess Alice of Albany took the place of the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz. In the fifth carriage Princess Victoria Patricia replaced Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein. In the sixth carriage rode, instead of Princess Victoria Patricia, the Duke of Sparta. Crown Prince Charles, of Denmark, occupied the place in the seventh carriage which the Duke of Sparta was to have taken. Lady Alexandra Duff rode in the eighth carriage in the place of Crown Prince Charles, of Denmark.

In the King's procession, in the first carriage after the King's haremster and twelve waiters, Hon. H. V. Specker and H. E. Festing, pages of honor, replaced Sir Acland Hood and Sidney Robert Greville. In the second carriage Hon. Victor Christian Cavendish, treasurer of His Majesty's household, was replaced by Sidney Robert Greville. Field Marshal Lord Wolseley was in the third carriage.

The royal train was followed by four native Indian officers, acting as aides to the Commander-in-Chief, Lord Roberts.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN

Says He Will Not be a Candidate For President in 1904.

Muscatine, Iowa, Aug. 8.—William J. Bryan settled for all time the rumors that he will be a candidate for President in 1904 in an interview to-day while on the way to Danville, Ill., where he was to speak to-night.

"I will not be a candidate for President in 1904," said Mr. Bryan. "While I would not promise never to be a candidate again under any circumstances, I have no plans looking to the future nomination for any office. I am perfectly content to do my work as a private citizen and enjoy my educational work. I shall continue to advocate with tongue and pen reforms which I believe to be necessary."

THE CELEBRATION IN FULL SWING

GLORIOUS WEATHER FOR TO-DAY'S EVENTS

Results of Races in J.B.A.A. Regatta—The Lacrosse Match—Sports and Baseball This Afternoon.

When this paper reaches the street Victoria's celebration of the King's coronation will be at its height. It may not be characterized by the pomp, pride and circumstance originally contemplated, but it is a sincere and loyal demonstration—as much so as in that world's heart where to-day the monarch is anointed. A noteworthy occasion should be observed in a fitting manner, and while there have been festivities in this city more elaborate, none can say with truth that Victoria failed to recognize the significance and importance of the event which now belongs to history—the crowning of the Emperor-King.

There are two aspects of to-day's celebration. In the one, the city churches this morning services appropriate to the occasion were conducted. An air of majestic solemnity pervaded the sacred precincts, impressing all present with the fact that the crowning of a monarch is something more than an incident to excuse any display and ostentation. The services were of the most impressive character, and were largely attended.

Then there is the other aspect, the sports, the contests of skill, strength and agility, processions and other features which make a Victoria celebration programme noted throughout the Northwest. The civic authorities are not to be congratulated for the attractions. They are provided by private organizations, whose arrangements blended so harmoniously that the uninitiated must feel certain that one executive body controls the entire machinery. From a comparatively early hour in the morning, until late at night, the day's programme contains a variety of features beyond criticism. It rests with the people to enjoy themselves with the wherewithal provided them. If they don't it will be they who are to blame, and not those who strive to entertain them.

It is indeed fortunate that the J. B. A. A. postponed their annual regatta until to-day. This aquatic event in itself was a very important part of the excitement, and is now in the city. More than a dozen races took place this morning, and they were competed by men who knew how to make them interesting and exciting as the many. The regatta shows: The work was warm and the pace in many cases fast, but the competitors cared not for either of these facts, and gave the spectators an exhibition that those who witnessed it will not easily forget.

In the Caledonia grounds the old rivals, Vancouver and Victoria, again crossed sticks in a championship lacrosse match. This attraction is also worthy of a conspicuous place on the programme, because, like the regatta, it took place simultaneously with it. The lacrosse match was a prominent feature of the celebration now on. The boom of the guns of the squadron and Fort Micaulay early this afternoon attracted attention toward that part of the city where the army and navy have their quarters. At Work Point the troops were paraded between 12 and 1 o'clock, and a feu de joie was fired.

This afternoon a multitude of attractions are on the tapis. There are the regatta, football, basketball, tennis, and other sports, and the many parades in imposing array a short time ago; the baseball match between the Lavins and Victoria, cricket games, football and hockey, the law tennis, and the many band concerts, a boxing tournament, entertainment at the Douglas gardens, and general jubilation will fill in the time until Coronation Day becomes the property of the past.

The city has quite a gala appearance. Many private establishments are decorated. This display is not only in the business section of the city, for residences as well as flying flags and bunting. The principal streets will be illuminated to-night, as well as the parliament buildings, and the appearance of the city at night surpasses it by day. In fact flags, bunting and bannets as adornment material are becoming back numbers. More attention is given to illumination in the larger cities, for there is nothing more beautiful than an effective combination of electric lights.

There are many visitors in the city, and there is a fine opportunity for the Tourist Association to do some good work. The association rooms this morning were visited by quite a large number, as the register there proves. All the provincial and civic departments are closed to-day, only the police are doing business, and the crowd is so orderly that "things are dull," even with them. Altogether to-day's celebration should be an unqualified success.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Big Events of the Week Are on the Tapis For This Afternoon.

The Victoria Tennis Club tournament has now narrowed down to the final events which determine the championship. As the tournament progressed the play became closer and more exciting, and yesterday some exceptionally good matches were witnessed. This afternoon, however, the prime events of the series, the culmination of the week's play, the singles, the ladies' doubles match, Mrs. Hardy and Miss A. Bell vs. Mrs. Burton and Miss A. Goward.

The next event, at 2 p. m., will be the gentlemen's doubles, J. A. Ritter and R. Selwenger vs. A. T. Goward and R. H. Pooley.

Following this will come the tie-off war for the ladies' championship, when Mrs. Byron-Johnson will endeavor to wrest the laurels from Miss Goward, before whose prowess many a formidable antagonist has fallen. This game will be played at 3:30 p. m., and should prove one of the features of the day.

The final match of the day, and the one on which the greatest interest centres, will be the struggle between the old-time rivals, A. T. Goward and R. H. Pooley, champion of British Columbia and of the State of Washington. This match is scheduled for 4:30 p. m. Other results in yesterday's play, than those already chronicled in these columns are as follows: Mrs. Byron-Johnson beat Miss Morris, 4-0, 6-4, 6-4. A. T. Goward beat R. Selwenger, 6-3, 8-6. R. H. Pooley beat Lieut. White, 7-5. Mrs. Byron-Johnson beat Miss R. H. 4-1, 6-4, 6-4. A. T. Goward beat R. H. Pooley, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

The Club Dance.

The Victoria Tennis Club held its annual dance at the Dallas hotel last night. About forty couples went through the gamut of dances on a well arranged programme, and in every way the affair was quite successful. The dancing apartment had been tastefully decorated by Mrs. Patterson and staff, the club colors and devices appropriate to this occasion being prominent. An excellent orchestra furnished the music. Supper was served in the hotel dining room at midnight, and ample justice was done the jolly array of delicacies which adorned the tables. This was the second dance of the club to be held at the Dallas.

THE REGATTA.

Large Number of Spectators and Keenly Contested Races.

The ninth annual regatta of the J. B. A. A. this morning commenced promptly at 10 a. m. The day was designated on the programme. The weather was, if anything, more favorable for an aquatic event today than yesterday, a pleasant breeze fanning the competing rowers in their exertions.

Quite a number of spectators occupied points of vantage in the rear of the club and bathhouse, while others occupied seats provided for them on the large scow adjoining. It was here that the City band was stationed, and enlivened the regatta with a well-selected programme. The different events were splendidly contested, and showed citizens and visitors alike that the J. B. A. A. hold no monopoly on the rowing ability in this association. The trophy for which the fours contested is the J. B. A. A. cup, which was won by two crews by the crew stroked by F. Widdowson. The course this morning was three-quarters of a mile straightway from the outer wharf to the inner harbor.

The races opened splendidly. The initial event, the first heat in the club fours, was one of the most exciting of the day, and was exciting from start to finish, the competing crews being stroked by H. Jesse and F. Dresser. The latter four took the lead almost immediately after the starting gun rang, and on their way to the finish they put on a telling spurt rowing in the form, and crossed the line about a length and three-quarters to the good, and the plaudits of the spectators. The winning crew were: E. Dresser (stroke), A. Maclean, A. George and A. Leane (bow).

The next heat was between G. McNeill and J. Sprinkling's crews. The former took the lead early in the race, and held it to the end, winning without difficulty. Sprinkling's crew shipped an oar while half way up, but their rivals had a lead of a length and a half when this happened, so it did not affect their relative positions. The winning crew was composed of G. McNeill (stroke), J. Fulsom, E. Hisecks and A. W. Merylees.

A beautiful finish of the next heat between W. Jesse's and F. Dillabough's crews was marred by a disarrangement of the former, who narrowly escaped running into a scow near where Macintosh's boat house formerly stood. Jesse's four led from the start, but were overtaken by their rivals. Both started near the finish, and Jesse's boat would have crossed the line by a fair margin had they not met disaster at the course. The winning crew consisted of F. Dillabough (stroke), F. Bone, S. Jost and J. E. C. Holmes.

Heat No. 4 was contested by R. Power's crew, the boys in blue, who pulled a stroke that deserved to win. They won by a couple of lengths. The crew consisted of R. Power (stroke), H. Morse, P. G. Andrews and E. G. Gowan. The fifth heat, between the winner of the first, Dresser's crew and Dillabough's four, was won by the former easily. Dillabough's crew disabled their rudder. Up to that time the race was a good one.

Owing to the accident of the Dillabough rudder in the previous heat, this race was rowed again, and after a fine struggle won by Dresser's crew. The line about three-quarters of a length ahead of their opponents, Dillabough's four.

The seventh heat, between Dresser's and McNeill's crews, was one of the finest of the day. It was won by the former by about four feet. On account of the early hour at which the Times goes to press to-day, it will be impossible to record further results in the regatta, which is still in progress.

ESQUIMAULT AND WORK POINT.

Brilliant Spectacle in the Naval Harbor Last Night—Ships Illuminated.

Residents of Esquimalt were last night treated to a brilliant spectacle, and one which will doubtless attract a large number from the city to-night. Just as 9 o'clock sounded out, the harbor was soared through the air from the flagship and H. M. S. Amphion, bursting into a myriad of sparks. This was but a signal for before the last speck of light died away, the outlines of the ships of the squadron brilliantly shone forth in the darkness, defined by electric lights. The sight was a beautiful one, the rows of light defining the masts, funnels and hulls of the flagship and Amphion, while the Esquima's illumination was heightened by Japanese lanterns.

To-day the squadron dressed ship, and a royal salute was fired early this afternoon. Special services were also held on board the different ships.

SOMETHING ABOUT MACKINNON MATCH

ANOTHER VICTORIAN WRITES FROM BISLEY

Onerous Conditions Sprung on the Colonials in the Event Referred to Above.

A letter has been received from Sgt. Major Macdonald, one of the Victorians on the Mackinnon match. When it was written the writer was not in good shooting form, having contracted a cold which affected his eyes and interfering considerably with his scoring in the practice matches. He writes that quite a number of Canadians will attend the coronation festivities in London to-morrow, including himself, Richardson, of the rifle team, and possibly Sgt. Bailey and Lettice of the coronation contingent. The weather at Bisley, he says, has been anything but pleasant, varying from warm to cold. The day he wrote the weather was very unpleasant, necessitating a fire in the hall of Canadian House.

Mr. Macdonald also alludes to the success attending their efforts to advance Victoria, and the intention of the Australian and South African teams to return to their homes by way of this country, shooting in the D. R. A. matches at Ottawa en route. English teams will also be represented at Ottawa by twenty crack marks, open to twelve-man teams, representing the Yoman or Volunteers of the Mother Country and the Colonies—a competition, with a difference, analogous to that for the Kolarup Cup. Much interest was manifested in this Mackinnon Cup shoot, seeing that it was the first occasion on which the frequenters of Bisley were to have a chance of "sizing up" the colonials, the presence of whom, as I have already pointed out, has imparted to this year's meeting its distinctive personal stamp. Since its foundation in 1891 the Mackinnon Cup shoot has undergone several modifications, and this year, for the first time, it was transferred to the longer ranges, so as to show what could be done with the service rifle under conditions similar to those of the modern Elcho Shield competition with the match rifle. The idea was an excellent one, but unfortunately it has for the present miscarried. The ranges in both cases are the same, but whereas the Elcho teams consist of eight men, the Mackinnon teams are composed of twelve. This, of course, tends to prolong the Mackinnon shoot, while on the other hand the Elcho marksman are allowed for their competition the forenoon as well as the afternoon, which latter is the only portion of the day allotted to the Mackinnon.

"And now comes the trouble. For the competition there were eight entries—England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Natal, and Northern Rhodesia. The first range of 900 yards—which was taken concurrently with the 900 yards for the Elcho, the Mackinnon teams were allowed their own time, when Canada came out leading with 470, followed by Scotland with 468, Australia with 468, New Zealand with 462, and Rhodesia with 461. Then back they went to the second range when, to their astonishment, they were informed by the executive officer that the shooting at each distance was subject to a time limit of 70 minutes—a limit which made it not only impossible for them to compete on even terms with the Elcho people, but also to finish their own respective rounds. Even the target markers would have found it impossible to do their work at such a rapid rate. The result was that Scotland and New Zealand retired at once from the unfavourable ordeal which had thus been sprung upon them, leaving the other teams to finish as best they could, though even then their curtailed competition was soon stopped by gunfire before it could be fairly 'fought to a finish'."

"The Canadians, for example, had still nineteen rounds to fire when they were thus rounded off, and held up. As it was Australia came out of the abbreviated battle with an unfinished score of 1,328 out of a possible 1,800, Canada with 1,308, Rhodesia with 1,267, and poor old England with only 1,205."

"The officials refuse to issue any statement until the council has sat upon the subject, but so far it is perfectly true that there has been a misunderstanding and muddling in some quarters—all the more regrettable as first impressions are everything with our gallant colonial visitors—but possible to-morrow may bring with it light and peace."

The shoot for the Mackinnon Cup took place on July 25th, when the Canadian team won with a score of 1,370.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Sheenandah, Pa., Aug. 8.—Joseph Paulk and Matthew Paulk, charged with the murder of Joseph Paulk in last week's riots, were arraigned to-day and committed, without bail, to the county jail at Pottsville. They were taken to the Pennsylvania station under guard to the troops. Joseph Paulk, charged with rioting, was released on $2,000 bail.

AT SMITH'S FALLS.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

No Weak He Couldn't Stand—Terribly Broken Up and Unable to Find a Cure—Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Him Well.

Smith's Falls, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—The cure of Mr. Theodore Young of this place is a wonderful example of the progress that medical science has made in the last few years.

Up till a short time ago the doctors claimed that Bright's Disease was absolutely incurable, and in fact there are a few who still adhere to this theory.

But Bright's Disease is not incurable, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure this terrible malady and have done so in thousands of cases.

Those who are skeptical need not go farther than this town to find proof. Mr. Young makes this statement:

"I was afflicted for about two years with Bright's Disease. My urine was very dark and I lost considerable blood, making me so weak I could scarcely stand. After using the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was much better, and when I had used four boxes I was able to resume work which I had not done for some time previous."

"I can conscientiously recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any one afflicted as I was."

Mr. Young's case is only one of a great many where Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured Bright's Disease. They have conquered Bright's Disease and restored to life and health men and women who had not expected to ever again enjoy this great blessing.

Dodd's Kidney Pills having demonstrated their ability to grapple with Bright's Disease in its very worst form, it is a matter of course that they are depended on to cure any of the lesser forms.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only medicine that has ever cured Bright's Disease.

IRISH AFFAIRS.

T. P. O'Connor Attacks Government for Refusing to Extradite Sergeant Sheridan.

London, Aug. 8.—On a motion providing for the third reading of the appropriation bill in the House of Commons to-day, T. P. O'Connor, Irish Nationalist, made a brief fighting speech, in which he re-iterated the grievances of Ireland, vigorously denouncing Sergeant Sheridan. He declared that the Irish constabulary, falsely convicted innocent persons. Mr. O'Connor strongly attacked the government for its refusal to extradite Sheridan from his retreat at Lowell, Mass.

George Wyham, secretary for Ireland, desired to further discuss the Sheridan case, but promised that if Irish landlords combined and resorted to such practices as boycotting and intimidation, he would take much pleasure in summoning them before magistrates.

The House of Commons adjourned to-day to October 16th.

ORDERED TO HOIST FLAG.

Honolulu, Aug. 2, via San Francisco, Aug. 8.—According to Honolulu men who are interested in the Marcus Island guano expedition, against which Japan has sent a war vessel, as reported by the last advice received from the States, the vessel which left here for the island carried a complement of Mauser rifles, and her captain had instructions from the company to plant the American flag on the island and keep it floating until compelled to haul it down.

Capt. A. A. Rosenthal, the discoverer of the island, who left his claim to it on a coconut tree on Marcus Island in 1889, is in command of the expedition. The company's claim is based on this title, which is on record in the state department in Washington.

THE GERMAN IMPERIAL YACHT HOHENZOLLERN.

With Emperor Wilhelm on board, sailed from Reval, Russia, for Wisby, Sweden. During their stay at Reval the czar and emperor were constantly together, and the intercourse was of the most cordial character.

It is a great affliction for a woman to have her face disfigured by pimples or any form of eruptive disease. It makes her morbid and sensitive, and robs her of her beauty and self-respect. Eruptions are caused by impure blood, and are entirely cured by the great blood-purifying medicine—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It removes from the blood the poisonous impurities which cause disease. It perfectly and permanently cures scrofulous sores, eczema, tetter, boils, pimples and other eruptive diseases which are caused by the blood's impurity. It increases the action of the blood-making glands and thus increases the supply of pure rich blood.

"For about one year and a half my face was very badly broken out," writes Miss Cora Adams, of 116 West Main Street, Battle Creek, Mich. "I spent a great deal of money with doctors for different kinds of medicine, but received no benefit. At last I read of your advertisement in a paper and ordered a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before I had taken one bottle of this medicine I noticed a change, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured. I can well recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to any afflicted person."

20 Years of Vile Catarrh

WONDERFUL TESTIMONY TO THE CURE OF VILE CATARRH BY AGNEW'S CATHARTIC POWDER.

Chas. O. Brown, journalist of Duluth, Minn., writes: "I have been a sufferer from Vile Catarrh for over 20 years, during which time my head has been stopped up and my condition truly miserable. With 15 mg. Agnew's Cathartic Powder I obtained relief. Three bottles have almost, if not entirely, cured me. Agnew's Ointment relieves piles instantly."

Sold by Jackson & Co. and Hall & Co.—2.

Joseph Gilson, 44 years old, and Oscar Berger, both of Bradford, Pa., were instantly killed near Bradford, Pa., by the explosion of a load of nitro-glycerine.

THREATENS TO CUT CABLE.

Telegraph Company Appeals to the United States for Protection.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The United States and Haytian Telegraph & Cable Company has appealed to the state department to prevent the cutting of its cable at Cape Haytien. According to information received by the company, the Haytian gunboat Creva Perrot, commanded by Admiral Killick, secretary of war and navy under the French revolutionary government, intends to sever the cable between Cape Haytien and New York. The company appealed to the authorities here to instruct Commander Pillsbury of the gunboat Machias, to protect the cable. Commander McCrea has been directed by cable to prevent the cutting of the cable.

AT SMITH'S FALLS.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

No Weak He Couldn't Stand—Terribly Broken Up and Unable to Find a Cure—Dodd's Kidney Pills Made Him Well.

Smith's Falls, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—The cure of Mr. Theodore Young of this place is a wonderful example of the progress that medical science has made in the last few years.

Up till a short time ago the doctors claimed that Bright's Disease was absolutely incurable, and in fact there are a few who still adhere to this theory.

But Bright's Disease is not incurable, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure this terrible malady and have done so in thousands of cases.

Those who are skeptical need not go farther than this town to find proof. Mr. Young makes this statement:

"I was afflicted for about two years with Bright's Disease. My urine was very dark and I lost considerable blood, making me so weak I could scarcely stand. After using the first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was much better, and when I had used four boxes I was able to resume work which I had not done for some time previous."

"I can conscientiously recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any one afflicted as I was."

Mr. Young's case is only one of a great many where Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured Bright's Disease. They have conquered Bright's Disease and restored to life and health men and women who had not expected to ever again enjoy this great blessing.

Dodd's Kidney Pills having demonstrated their ability to grapple with Bright's Disease in its very worst form, it is a matter of course that they are depended on to cure any of the lesser forms.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only medicine that has ever cured Bright's Disease.

THE CORONATION HONORS.

HOSPITAL GARDEN FETE.

Arrangements for Annual Event to Be Held Next Week.

The annual garden party in aid of the working fund, Woman's Auxiliary Society, Provincial Royal Jubilee hospital, is fixed to take place this year at the Douglas gardens on Wednesday, August 20th, from 3 to 10 p.m. The fete is under the kind patronage of the Commander-in-Chief and Mrs. Bickford, Col. Grant, R.E., and Mrs. Grant, His Worship the Mayor, the president and executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary, and the president and board of directors of the Provincial Royal Jubilee hospital. The Douglas family are taking their usual prominent share in the work and arrangements, and it is greatly by their efforts that these entertainments have achieved such general popularity. The special object of this year is to provide funds to complete payment on the sterilizing apparatus, which is about to be installed at the hospital by the Woman's Auxiliary, and which has been a most long-felt need. The kindness and patronage of the public is invited for the occasion, and all members or friends of the society are urged to contribute either cake, sandwiches, home-made candy, choice cut flowers (for button holes), or small articles for the fish pond. Further particulars will appear later.

CANADIAN NEWS NOTES.

The Corps of Manitoba—Steamship Captain Missing—Wireless Telegraphy Station.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The Toronto Field Battery will fire a royal salute at seven o'clock to-morrow in honor of the coronation of King Edward. That hour was chosen because it is then noon in Britain and all the batteries there will fire salutes.

Ended His Life.

A. Vevers committed suicide by taking carbolic acid in a glass of beer last night. A quarrel with the woman he was living with was the cause.

Manitoba Crops.

Hon. Robert Rogers, of the Manitoba government, is in the city. He says the farmers of his province sold $40,000,000 worth of produce last year. He states that Manitoba has 23,000,000 acres of arable land as good as the 3,000,000 acres now under cultivation. He estimates this year's crop at 50,000,000 bushels, and thinks the railways are in good condition to handle the crop, with ten million bushels increase in the elevator.

Captain Missing.

Windsor, Aug. 8.—Ten days ago Capt. Edward Gathfeld, of Amherstburg, disappeared from his steamer at Cleveland and has not since been heard of. He is said to have had money in his possession at the time of his disappearance, and it is feared he has met with foul play.

Two Drowned.

Quebec, Aug. 8.—Joseph Dery, of Chateaufort, and Alexis Tremblay, of Chateaufort, were drowned in a dam at Chateaufort last night. Both men were repairing the dam when their boat capsized.

Remanded.

Gaynor and Greene came up again this morning but Judge Caron remanded the prisoners for a week, when he expects to be able to give judgment in their case.

Will Attend Celebration.

Halifax, Aug. 8.—United States Consul Foster was notified last night that the United States government was sending the battleship Indiana to Halifax to take part in the coronation celebration to-morrow.

Match Drawn.

All-Halifax cricket match with Philadelphia was concluded yesterday afternoon and resulted in a draw in favor of the home team. On account of bad weather only one inning each was played. The home team scored 218 and Philadelphia 127.

Marconi's Station.

The first notices have been sent out on the Marconi building at Table Bay, N.S. Accommodation has been made for a hundred telegraph operators.

Drowned.

Robt. Webster, a prominent young business man of Kentville, was drowned to-day while gallantly endeavoring to save two boys from drowning, sons of Ralph Scaiton, a large fish farmer.

Winding-Up.

Montreal, Aug. 8.—Application has been made to the Supreme court for a winding-up order for the Canadian Woolen Mills Company. The company has a capitalization of $2,000,000, of which $1,000,000 is common stock and $1,000,000 preferred stock and $500,000 first mortgage bonds. The John Matville company, of New York, control the bond issue. The company is a large manufacturer of common and preferred stock. It is explained that the company's capitalization has been found too great and the present method is being used to reduce it. The operations of the mill will not be continued and trade creditors will not be affected.

THREE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Worn Out and Nervous Regained Their Health and Beauty By Taking Peruna.

Miss Florence Allan, a beautiful Chicago girl, writes the following to Dr. S. B. Hartman concerning his catarrhal tonic, Peruna:

75 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill.

"As a tonic for a worn-out system, Peruna stands at the head in my estimation. Its effects are truly wonderful in rejuvenating the entire system. I keep it on hand all the time, and never have that 'tired feeling,' as a few doses always make me feel like a different woman."—Florence Allan.

Thousands of women suffer from systemic catarrh. This is sure to produce such symptoms as cold feet and hands, sick headache, palpitation of the heart, and heavy feelings in the stomach. Then begins a series of experiments. They take medicine for sick headache. They take medicine for nervous prostration, for palpitation of the heart, for dyspepsia. None of these medicines do any good because they do not reach the cause of the complaint.

Peruna at once mitigates all these symptoms by removing the cause. Systemic catarrh is the trouble. Systemic catarrh pervades the whole system, deranges every organ, weakens every function. No permanent cure can be expected until the systemic catarrh is removed.

This is exactly what Peruna will do.

Miss Cullen Was Exhausted From Over Study.

Miss Rose Cullen, President of the Young Woman's Club, Butte, Montana, writes:

921 Galena street, Butte, Mont.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen—"Peruna has many friends in Butte. I cannot say too much in praise of it. While finishing school I became very nervous and exhausted from over-study. I was weak and sick, and could neither eat, sleep nor enjoy life. A couple bottles of Peruna put new life in me. I find by having it in the house and taking a dose off and on it keeps me in fine health. A large number of my friends place Peruna at the head of all medicines."—Rose Cullen.

Peruna is especially adapted to protecting against and curing nervous diseases of run-down women, as the testimonial of Miss Cullen indicates.

Miss Blanche Myers, 3120 Penn street, Kansas City, Mo., has the following to say of Peruna:

"During each of the past four seasons I have caught a severe cold, when suddenly chilled after an evening party, and catarrh for several weeks would be the result. One bottle of Peruna cured me, and I shall not dread colds any more as I did."—Blanche Myers.

An excellent little treatise on "Health and Beauty," written especially for women, by Dr. S. B. Hartman, will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

City News in Brief.

—Somebody stole a handsome vase belonging to Mrs. Croft at the flower show last night.

—Three more of the South African contingent arrived home on the steamer Yosemite this morning.

—The Natural History Society will meet in the usual place next Monday evening, commencing at 8 o'clock.

—J. Howie, of the Edmonton Bulletin, was one of the visitors to the city to-day. He intends remaining in the West and engaging in newspaper work here.

—R. M. S. Mowbray is now overdue from the Antipodes. She was not reported from Carmanah up till noon, and is probably delayed by fog off the entrance to the Straits.

—No woman was ever known to have too much fine china or cut glass. Think of this when buying wedding presents, and come to W. G. Cameron, where you will find the large assortment.

—Steamer Willapa returned to port this morning, having spent the week at the coast. She is now being used by the City of Nanaimo, which will be ready to resume service next week.

—On August 4th and 15th the Great Northern railway will sell tickets from Victoria, B. C., to St. Paul, Minn., and return at a rate of $52; final limit October 15th. For full particulars apply at office, 75 Government street.

—A number of the fleet in port are very handsomely decorated with flags to-day. The Quorra has a string of flags stretching from masthead to masthead and from stem to stern. Another vessel that is showing plenty of color is the American schooner Spokane.

—The Sons of St. George held a grand coronation ball in the A. O. U. W. hall last night. The ball was handsomely decorated, and the music and all other arrangements were excellent. The ball commenced with a grand march, in which one hundred and fifty couples took part.

—News comes from Alert Bay that David Loftus, an old-timer, and one of the best known loggers on the coast, was killed a few days ago at the Whiffleson Bay logging camp. Loftus was working near the track and started to climb on the timber-hauling locomotive while it was moving. He fell and was caught under the wheels, and was so badly mangled that he died a short time afterwards.

—Two coronation excursions are to be run out of the city to-morrow by the Victoria Terminal railway, connecting at Sidney with the steamers of the Sidney and Nanaimo Transportation Co. One of these is to Crofton by the Inoupsis; the other to Friday Harbor, San Juan Island, by the Strathcona. A rate of $1.25 is being offered for each excursion. The trains leave the market at 9 a. m., arriving at Crofton at 12 noon, leaving Crofton at 3 and reaching Victoria at 6.30. The other train leaves at 11, and the city will be reached again at 6.30.

—An excellent opportunity to inspect a large salmon cannery in operation is afforded to-morrow by the trip to Port Angeles on the popular excursion steamer City of Nanaimo, sailing from the C. P. N. wharf at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. The interesting proceeds of the trip will be witnessed in all its branches from the taking of the fish from the traps to being packed in cases ready for the market. The Fifth Regiment band will accompany the excursion and will render a choice programme of popular music. The fare for the return trip is only fifty cents.

paraded in full dress at 12:15 this morning. At 12:30 the Royal Artillery fired a royal salute of 21 rounds with the 13-pounders. The soldiers on parade fired a feu-de-joie of three rounds, after each of which the Fifth Regiment band played "God Save the King." When the firing was over the soldiers, led by Lt. Colonel Grant, gave three cheers for the King and Queen.

CORONATION SERVICES.

Worship was held in several of the City Churches To-Day.

Special services were held in many of the city churches to-day to commemorate the coronation of King Edward VII. At Christ Church cathedral, where the order of proceedings are exactly the same as that nuptial out for Westminster Abbey, many of the city and provincial officials were in attendance. Service commenced at 11 o'clock and continued until about 12:30 o'clock. Bishop Porritt presided at the altar, and was assisted by Rev. Canon Beaudouin. In a number of the other Anglican churches services were also conducted, as well as in the Roman Catholic cathedral and the Temple Emmanuel. Large attendances were the order of the day, the special character of the services being a strong attraction.

THE BOXING CARNIVAL.

Ring in Good Condition and All Arrangements Satisfactory for To-Night.

Everything in readiness for the boxing carnival to-night at the Philharmonia hall, under the auspices of the Victoria Athletic Club. The excellent programme already published in these columns will be carried out to the letter and under conditions which insure success. In the first place the ring, thanks to the experience and skill of Bob Foster, is in fine condition, while the management have made a point of arranging the seating accommodation in the most advantageous way. Captain Phillips-Wolley will referee the events, and will be assisted at the ring side by Duncan Campbell. Those who like to witness clever exhibitions of the manly art have an excellent opportunity to do so to-night.

VISITORS HERE.

Boats and Trains Brought Many Excursionists to the City.

A large number of visitors are helping Victorians to celebrate Coronation Day. There are here excursionists from Seattle, Vancouver, from points up the E. & N. line, the Victoria Terminal railway, and elsewhere. The steamer Vascotto, which arrived from Vancouver at 6:30 a. m., brought 475 people, including the Sixth regiment. The Seattle military band came over to spend the day in the city and soon made their presence known. They paraded several of the principal streets and played a number of capital selections.

VICTORIA WON.

Local Team Defeated Vancouver in Lacrosse Match This Morning.

The Victoria team won the lacrosse match in the Victoria grounds this morning. The game was very evenly contested, as the final score, 4-3, shows. Up to the last quarter Victoria's score was three, and Vancouver's one. The latter then picked up and increased their score by two before the whistle blew. Victoria, however, added another goal in the last quarter, capturing the game.

ROSSLAND. The new general manager and chief engineer of the Great Northern railway, accompanied J. J. Hill on his visit here. As chief engineer, Mr. Stevens was interested in the proposed to improve the company's depot facilities here and the yard arrangements. After referring to the fact that the dullness throughout the country had retarded somewhat as a wet blanket, a considerable appropriation at Rossland, Mr. Stevens said, "There is no doubt it is time we were doing something here, and we will have to get at it now." He was not in a position to go into details as to the date of commencing work upon the new depot building and yards, but left the impression that the construction would be commenced at a comparatively early date. He went carefully over the ground about the station with the plans for the suggested improvements, and expressed his approval of the suggestions contained therein.

NELSON.

The Nelson Board of Trade will send as its delegate to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association meeting at Halifax, H. E. Crossdale, to advocate increased duties on lead imports in protection of Canadian silver-lead mining and smelting interests. A specific duty of a cent a pound on raw lead is suggested as the tariff rate.

The collections for July at the Nelson customs house amounted to $19,707.81. Goods passed through not liable to duty, $125,125. Value of dutiable imports, $79,228. Compared with last year the collections show a large increase. For July, 1901, the collections were $13,210.91; free import values, $22,220; dutiable values, $40,798. In June, 1902, the collections were $16,542.14, which was also a large increase over the corresponding period of the previous year.

GREENWOOD.

C. S. Holman, foreman at the Mother Lode mine, had a narrow escape from a serious if not fatal injury a day or two ago. He was standing with a shift some men, who were prying down a rock, were doing, and without the men noticing that he had done so moved forward. Just then the rock came down, one large piece striking Holman in the back. Fortunately he was knocked clear of where the rock fell to the floor, otherwise he must have been crushed under it. His clothes were torn by the falling rock, which struck him a nasty blow, but outside of a bruise and a shaking up he was unharmed.

TIRED SALESWOMEN.

Employers Should be More Considerate. Mrs. Pinkham Asks Tired Women to Write Her for Advice.

In the vast retail establishments of large cities, many women are employed as saleswomen.

Men formerly held the positions that women now hold, and while women's organism is less strong than men's, they are expected to do the same work. Their duties compel them to be on their feet from morning to night, and many of them, in a short time, contract those distressing complaints called "female diseases."

Then occur irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhoea, general debility, and nervous prostration.

They are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness.

In such cases there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following letters prove this. They also prove the value of Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

"I Can Work Every Day in the Week Now."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I write this letter for you to publish for the benefit of poor, suffering women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me a great deal of good. I have taken three bottles and feel like a new woman. When I began the use of your medicine, I was hardly able to be up; could not do half a day's work. I ached from head to foot, was almost crazy, had those bearing-down pains, and stomach was out of order. Now all of those troubles have left me and I can work every day in the week and not feel tired."—MRS. JENNIE FREEMAN, 402 Pennsylvania Ave., Lima, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you for I have been suffering for a long time. This I did some time ago.

"Now I can hardly find words to thank you for your wonderful

UNDER CANVAS AROUND VICTORIA.

Some of the Many Spots in the Vicinity of this City Which Are at Present Dotted With the Tents of Campers With Outdoor Colonies.

ON OAK BAY BEACH

THE opening of the school term on Monday would undoubtedly have affected the number of campers at the many spots of delightful resorts which environ this city. There is little doubt that the youngsters contribute more to the life of a camping community than any other contributing factor, and their absence would create a gap which could not possibly be filled. Therefore, it is quite reasonable to expect that the far-flung ringing of the bell would bring down many tents and leave more than one little Eden desolate in the neighborhood of this city.

There is, of course, an end to all good things, and school holidays do not last forever. But just the same many a little heart would throb with delight if the education department in its goodness extended the vacation until the last of September, and allowed a legion of sun-burned youngsters to squirm in the sand or flop around in the water a few weeks longer.

Unquestionably there are few, if any, cities on the coast which possess such this part of the year, but he or she may be to put in a few weeks under canvas notwithstanding. There are for instance a few camps up the Arm inhabited only during the evening. The campers work in the day time and then pull up their temporary homes in a boat, making the distance in half an hour or so. Such camps must necessarily be large, stocked with provisions, because roasting is a celebrated "appetizer" and the destruction of good things "when" the campers reach their destination is appalling.

There are a number of delightful groves along the Arm splendidly adapted for camping—quiet little spots just near enough to the city to be convenient, where there is nothing like proximity to headquarters when the harbor falls into a rapid decline. Those who have subsisted on corn meal three times a day, hazy-colored coffee, black bacon and belated corn beef never care to repeat the experience. Several of the camps referred to are established on the other side of the Gorge bridge and a reproduction of one of them appears on these pages.

Isn't the very picture enough to send the worried slaves of commerce away

romantic courtship is being softly conducted. This last is one of the diversions not hitherto mentioned, and while not so general as some of the more enjoyable than even ping pong. At any rate it is as inseparable from cosmopolitan camps, such as that at Cordova Bay, as the ubiquitous mosquito. Although quite a distance from the city the campers there manage to get all they need in the way of commodities. Butcher and bakery delivery carts, call weekly deliver goods and take orders.

Some day it is to be hoped in the present century there will be a line of tracks to this beautiful place. By that time, doubtless, Douglas Park, already fully described in the Times, will have been opened to the public. Perhaps on the summit of the mountain there will be an observatory and an up-to-date cafe, while a scenic railway will take wonder-struck tourists to the top. At the Bay there will, perchance, be a summer hotel, and then there will be no spot on the Pacific coast, not even at Santa Barbara, Santa Monica or any other Santa, that can compare with it. This is a little picture such as one dreamed at Cordova Bay on a hot August day, but it is among the possibilities of the future.

If the prospector concludes that all these places are too near the city, if he wants to forget that he sells dress fabric at so much per yard, if you please, or soy. He may camp, or if he shrinks from the chores therewith connected, he may spend a few weeks at the hotel

there, Mr. Jensen will see that he enjoys himself. If he can't put up with his "something radically wrong with him," something more popular every year is Shawigan Lake. Pleasure seekers have invaded this beautiful resort in large numbers during the present season. Each departing contingent is succeeded by new arrivals keeping the management and staffs of the two hotels, Shawigan Lake and Strathcona, busy attending to their wants.

Boating and blackberrying are the chief amusements, for just now the fishing is poor. In the evening there are concerts, dances, ping pong tournaments and other diversions, so it can be seen that there is little that goes on in town that the rusticator at Shawigan can't enjoy. Out there they miss the smoke, the dust, and at this particular period the rather aggressive odor that arises from the mud flats during the reclamation process.

There are campers also at Kanaka Ranch, Esquimalt, Macaulay Point, Sooke, Goldstream and numerous other places not mentioned, but not at present recalled. They all have charms of their own—contrasting toward making Victoria the most delightful campers' resort in the Pacific Northwest if not on and English are perfect, and he is sufficiently well acquainted with German and Italian to make himself understood without the least difficulty, though he is not really a fluent speaker of these tongues. Few men alive can do more.

The young King of Italy is the possessor of a magnificent collection of coins. There are 50,000 specimens kept in twenty-four great cupboards. These coins come from 200 different mints. The old Roman coins are unexcelled.

Besides being in the very first class as a writer of romantic word pictures, the talented Queen of Rumania is believed to be unequalled anywhere as an embroiderer. That this is no idle boast on the fact that her work took the gold medal at the Paris exhibition in open competition with that of all the best seamstresses in Europe.

Nor was Carmen Sylva the only royal exhibitor at the great Paris show. King Charles of Portugal sent a very beautiful pastel drawing, for which he judged as an artist and not a King, received a silver medal.

Mention has been made of the Kaiser's large number of estates. The Czarevna has him in average. He owns more land than any other human being. Russia's crown estates comprise over superb camping resorts as Victoria. Victorians are apt to take the unvarnished charms offered by their city as a matter of course. But when they come to realize their advantages, take the neighboring cities. Has Vancouver any more pleasant camping spots than Victoria? Has Seattle or Tacoma, or any of the Northwest cities for that matter? The oft-expressed opinion of tourists and travellers is that they have not, and they certainly should know.

The sportsman can pitch his tent, put his camp in readiness, go out with his rod or gun and secure a half before the sun sets on the same day that he started forth. The invalid can enjoy the exhilarating breezes from the sea by taking a short and comfortable trip to one of the many bays which skirt this part of the island, and be refreshed by a host of merry rusticators. Besides bathing, boating and every description of summer diversion, there is a quiet life in this favored place which stands unequalled in its possession of manifold from the "madding crowds," etc., etc., to enjoy life. Adam must have enjoyed it before Eve ruined his prospects. The happy contented appearance of those campers kills all suggestion of undercooked fare, of pancakes and saltless porridge, condensed milk, cheese, and the other demoralizers of the digestive apparatus. Other camps, on the Arm, are situated above Craigdown bridge. This is too far to row morning and evening. The occupants like leaving the Arm and moving in a south-easterly direction about the same distance as the Gorge from the city, the wanderer strikes a number of "tent communities" of no small proportions. In fact there is one at Foul Bay, large enough to be an incorporated town. Here there are both tents and cottages. The place is an ideal one, and always charms the tourist who gets out that it is a little picture such as one dreamed at Cordova Bay on a hot August day, but it is among the possibilities of the future.

If the prospector concludes that all these places are too near the city, if he wants to forget that he sells dress fabric at so much per yard, if you please, or soy. He may camp, or if he shrinks from the chores therewith connected, he may spend a few weeks at the hotel the Pacific coast. The distances are not great, in fact, in some cases they are with few exceptions, easily reached.

ROYALTIES' RECORDS

Striking Performances by Ogatory, Travel and Literature by Sun-dry Sovereigns.

Royalties seem to possess more records in proportion to their number than most other classes.

The German Emperor is, of course, in the van. He has made 280 speeches in a single year, a number probably unequalled by any of his subjects. He promptly holds also the travel record for any one except an engine driver. In one recent year he travelled on 190 days, covering in all 18,750 miles by land and sea. His average journeyings for the past three years have been 1,000 to 1,100 miles a year. Another record of the Kaiser's is the ownership of the greatest number of estates held by any monarch on earth. He has no fewer than eighty-three.

The Shah of Persia speaks three lan-

650,000,000 acres of cultivated soil—no say nothing of uncounted square miles of forest, and about sixty-five miles of coast.

A queer record belongs to Princess Sophia of Prussia. At her wedding she had to kiss 140 different royal friends and relatives. She is said to have accomplished the task in three-quarters of an hour.

Coronation Oddities.

The robes of state in which Queen Victoria was crowned have not yet been offered for sale, but if precedent be followed they may be put up at public auction at any time. Those of George IV. were disposed of in June, 1831. The crimson velvet mantle, embroidered in gold, that cost £1,500, fetched only 47 guineas; a mantle of purple velvet went for £55; the coronation ruff, £2; a mantle of green velvet, lined with ermine, presented by the Earl of Arundel, £1,000, was knocked down for £125. Most of the wardrobe was bought for Mme. Tussaud's waxworks show.

On frequent occasions jewels have been hired for the adornment of the British regalia and the persons of the sovereigns at coronations. Formerly crowns were ordinarily adorned with gems, which were only fastened into place in time for the function.

The coronation of James II. was the most splendid that England had at that time seen, yet we read that a necklace for the Queen was hired of Messrs. Childs, the bankers, of Temple Bar, for £222, and a pair of diamond earrings for £300. Even a diamond ring worn on the King's hand, was rented for the occasion.

George IV., whose coronation was the most costly in English history, hired the jewels used in the smaller crown that he wore at the banquet of Messrs. Fane & Bridges, the goldsmiths. Haydon, in his autobiography, is authority for the statement that George's state crown was also hired. Lord Liverpool, he says, would not permit the King to buy it at Bunde's price, £70,000, wherefore it was hired for the day for £7,000.

Greville, in his "Memoirs," describes Queen Adelaide refusing to use a hired crown, even when her husband, William IV., who was economically inclined, informed her she would have to stand the expense herself if she bought one, which nevertheless she did.

None of the present regalia of England is older than the Commonwealth, not even the so-called "crown of Edward the Confessor." It is possible that the "ampulla," or vase, which contains the Holy Oil of Christ used at the anointing, is an antique, but even this is uncertain. The cross on top of the large Imperial crown contains a rose-cut sapphire which, according to tradition, belonged to St. Edward the Confessor, and for centuries hung at his shrine at Westminster. It is supposed to bestow on its owner the miraculous power of blessing the Cramp rings, an obsolete custom. If it be the original stone it must have been secreted by friendly hands at the time of the Commonwealth, when all the crown jewels were sold or stolen, and this is true of the famous ruby attributed to the Black Prince, which King Edward VII. is to wear in his new crown. George IV. bought the sapphire with the other Stuart relics after the death of the Cardinal of York.

The history of the ruby is interesting. King Pedro the Cruel of Castile (1333-64) received the "Red" King of Granada at Seville for a conference, having given his royal guarantee of safe conduct. In the visitor's turban blazed the ruby. Whether from reasons of policy or influenced by a desire to possess the stone cannot be learned—the perfidious Spaniard slew the defenceless Moor in cold blood and the gem passed into Christian hands. Later Pedro gave it to Edward the "Black" Prince of Wales, son of King Edward III., and it has remained in English hands ever since. Some say it is not a true ruby at all, but only a "spinel." It is pierced in Oriental fashion, the hole being filled by a smaller ruby. It forms part of the State crown at present.

Another jewel which has seen adventures is a rose diamond which formerly belonged to Mary Queen of Scots, who, on the eve of her execution, sent it to her son, James I. James II. caused it to be set for his coronation ring, and had it in his pocket when he was detained by the fishermen of Sheerness in his attempt to escape from England in 1688. He secreted it inside his clothing along with a diamond bodkin belonging to the Queen. The sailors mistook him for a Jesuit in disguise, and proceeded to search him. In his pocket he had some little articles of toilet use, scissors, knives, etc., and when a sailor, feeling from the outside struck the ring and bodkin, the King persuaded him it was the scissors, etc. The man ran his hands down into the royal pocket and brought them up, and thus the ring and bodkin escaped. George IV. also acquired this ring when the Stuart papers and cabinet of relics were bought. So interesting a gem should be allotted a place among the regalia at the approaching coronation.

So essential to the validity of an English King's title to allegiance has the coronation been regarded in times past, that none of them, so far as history shows, has omitted it. Indeed, when Richard Cœur de Lion returned from captivity, he caused himself to be crowned for a second time, probably to show that the interregnum caused by his absence was at an end. And the crowning of the Queen's consort has been almost as strictly observed. Not only are they formally crowned, but also anointed. In France, under the old regime, the Queens had no place in the function. Napoleon caused Josephine to be crowned, but he was an "outsider" and this was a solitary instance.

When Napoleon placed the imperial diadem on his brow a small stone disengaged itself from the roof of Notre Dame and projected itself upon his shoulders. The Empress, who was extremely superstitious, was most unfavorably affected by this incident.

Charles I. was crowned in a white velvet mantle instead of the regulation red because there was not enough red velvet in London to fill the order. The croakers regarded this with disfavor, as white was prophesied to be an unlucky color for this English King. The coincidence is worthy of note that he was beheaded in front of his palace of Whitehall, and when his coffin was carried out to be laid away the descending snow of that January day wave over the black velvet hearse a pall of white that enshrouded the King as had his coronation mantle.

Down to the time of George IV. the English Kings kept up the pretension of being Kings of France. At the coronation of George III. the Dukes of Normandy and Aquitaine were represented by two play actors who appeared in full ceremonies, joining in the kiss of homage with the other peers, and putting on their coronets along with them.

Queen Anne, albeit only thirty-eight years of age when crowned, was so infirm from gout and corpulence that she had to be carried into the Abbey in a chair, and was literally "supported" on each side whenever the rubrics required her to move from place to place.

The Kings of the Belgians are not formally crowned.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

There are few trades and business enterprises nowadays that do not number some woman among their workers, managers or employees. Widows, thrown upon their own resources, frequently assume charge of their husband's business—perhaps an occupation they never voluntarily would have chosen—or ambitious girls follow their fancy in some strange, because novel, occupation.

The only woman manager of a great biscuit concern is Miss Jennie Hitchner, of Pittston, Pa.

One of the finest hotels in the Southern States has a woman as proprietor. Women are beginning to adopt the hotel business as a larger form of housekeeping for which the training of the centuries has fitted them.

Mrs. Emma Shafter, Howard, a wealthy widow of California, is secretary of the Women's State Agricultural and Horticultural Union.

One of the pioneer wood and steel engravers of America, Miss Sarah Fuller, recently died in New Jersey at the age of 73.

Miss Vincent, of Marblehead, Mass., is earning a good living as a pilot in San Pedro harbor, California.

A sawmill is successfully run by a woman near Plainfield, N. J. Mrs. David Blackford carries on this industry, performing the part of engineer, and hiring a man and boy for rough work. Her husband spend six months of each year in South America, searching for lumber, and thus the profits of the lucrative busness are kept in the Blackford family. Mrs. Blackford is a comely young woman, who supervises all the financial and mechanical parts of the sawmill, turning out extra fine work.

A Wisconsin woman is a successful poultry raiser, and is employed by the State Board of Agriculture as a lecturer. She has studied the language of poultry, and believes that a hen's vocabulary consists of 17 words, a rooster's of seven.

Two women of San Jose, Cal., Josephine Graham and Louisa Held, own and carry on a barber shop. They have been barbers for eight years. Their shop is clean, neat and attractive, containing good pictures, flowers and magazines, and is patronized by many of the leading citizens.

City Churches and Their Pastors.

NO. IX.—FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

When the second contingent followed Canada's first contribution to the cause of Empire, among the gallant ones who comprised it was the present pastor of the First Congregational church. He went as gunner, became corporal and had a taste of campaigning in the great African struggle which now belongs to history. He was invalided to England with enteric fever, and while there had the honor of presenting a bouquet to the late Queen.

The foregoing explains why Rev. R. B. Blyth, B. A., is called the "Fighting Clergyman," and in a different sphere he has still a militant attitude. It is spiritual warfare that he now wages, and he conducts it with the same devotion to his religious principles that characterized the service he rendered his country in the hour of her need.

At the time of his arrival here to take charge of the Congregational church a session of the provincial legislature was to be opened, and it was deemed peculiarly fitting that he should officiate as chaplain on the occasion, which was one of more than ordinary pomp.

Rev. Mr. Blyth has barely crossed the threshold of his ministerial career. He was born near Belwood, Ontario, and educated at the British-American Business College, Toronto; Toronto University and McGill University. He was gold medalist in the first named institution. After graduating from McGill in 1898 he studied in the Congregational College, and preached at Morville, Ont., from 1897 to 1899. He subsequently took charge of a church at Amherst Park, which he left when the second Canadian contingent was enrolled.

He is very popular with his congregation, having a courteous and genial manner, which agreeably impresses all with whom he comes in contact. He is an active church worker, as enthusiastic and vigorous in the pulpit as out of it, and fully alive to the most advantageous means of advancing the interests of his congregation. It is largely through his energetic efforts that steps have been taken which will result in the erection of a commodious new edifice on the corner of Blanchard street and Pandora avenue. Rev. Mr. Blyth has been in the East on leave of absence, but will likely arrive in time to conduct to-morrow's services.

First Congregational Church.

The First Congregational church, of this city, was formally organized on November 20th, 1895, the services being conducted by Rev. H. C. Mason, of Vancouver. Rev. A. J. Bailey, of Seattle, and other Congregational ministers from the United States. Previous to that, however, services were held. Rev. Jonas Busdell, of Port Angeles, officiating during September. Since its formal organization to the present the church has continued to meet in the Temperance hall, Pandora street, but in the meantime funds have been accumulating in the various ways common to churches, and preparations have been in progress towards providing a church building of their own.

A site for a church has been purchased and paid for, and a considerable sum is promised by the Mission Societies towards the erection of a church. The time is close at hand when for the first time in the history of this city Congregationalists here will be able to worship in their own church, and that church at most, if not entirely, free from debt.

KING EDWARD, WHO WAS CROWNED TO-DAY.

The Queen as Reformer

No Queen in all the world can claim such homage, such reverence and such love, as can the gracious Consort of King Edward; and of a certainty there is no living Queen who has more deservedly won the universal affection of the people, who has worked harder for their welfare, sympathized more truly with their afflictions, or bound herself more closely with their real interests. What Queen Alexandra has done, no pen can record; a thousand and one deeds must needs sink somewhat into oblivion as time goes on; and it is only the few which can be singled out as fraught with consequences of perpetual benefit, as tending to the welfare of generations yet unborn.

Take for instance Her Majesty's solicitude on behalf of the poor at the time of the late Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. Just previous to the great event, money was simply pouring in from all parts of the country for festivities of every description, millions being collected with ready liberality. Queen Alexandra's kind heart went out in pitying sympathy to those who would have no chance of actively participating in the general rejoicing, and she wrote a letter to the Lord Mayor of London, which, when made public, touched the ready compassion of those who were in a position to help. The subscription which Her Majesty herself headed was almost immediately made up, and no less than 210,000 of those for whom she had headed as the "poorest of the poor" were made happy with an invitation to a feast the like of which they had never dreamed. Said one ancient dame to Her Majesty, when the latter smilingly walked round the tables at one of the great feasts: "Eh, dearie, but it's a grand day." And a grand day it was, and untold were the blessings which the event called down on the head of the kindly monarch.

The subject of proper meals for the working classes has been one upon which Her Majesty has thought very deeply, and she was long anxious to establish a scheme whereby the people could obtain food of the best quality, well cooked, and what is also important, well served, for nominal payment. For many years the Queen has been thoroughly familiar with the famous soup kitchens of some of the great continental cities, places at which large numbers of the most respectable working classes are in the habit of taking their dinners. These in all by the way consist of a great variety of tasty dishes which can be purchased for a very small sum. Feeling convinced that similar institutions would be appreciated here, and would be beneficial to the working classes, Her Majesty made known her project to a few friends. Sir Thomas Lipton, thinking that there was every reason to expect that restaurants for the working classes could be carried on upon the sound lines of common sense, came forward with the offer of £100,000 to finance the project. This sum has since been materially increased.

The Alexandra Trust was then formed, with a powerful committee, of which Her Majesty became the president. A large building was erected in the City Road, in the very midst of a dense working community, and close to an important tram and omnibus junction. It comprises three large dining halls, as well as a commodious suite of kitchen, and a full complement of necessary offices. In the centre of each dining hall is a bar and counter, fitted with urns for tea, coffee and cocoa, and milk bowls; pure water, drawn from an artesian well, 300 feet deep, is given gratis. Five hundred persons can dine in each hall simultaneously, and the entire establishment can furnish 12,000 meals per day with ease. The restaurant has a particularly cheap and varied bill of fare, and a frequent can procure anything from a halfpenny ticket for tea, coffee, soup, or a slice of bread and butter or cake, up to a full dinner of three courses for 4d. There is also an excellent toilet accommodation in the basement, which is free to all. It includes an incessant water supply, and a sufficiency of round towels and soap, while boots can be cleaned for one halfpenny.

The building was formally opened in March, 1900, the King and Queen then the Prince and Princess of Wales paying a surprise visit a few days later, and each partaking of the ordinary three-course dinner in one of the public halls. This building is regarded as an experiment, and as a great amount of the first money remains intact, it is intended to use it in other quarters of London, when the working experience gained here has shown whether the restaurants should be larger or smaller, or whether any change in the present working details is desirable.

We are all more or less familiar with the active interest which Queen Alexandra has displayed in the hospitals of the country; but there is one hospital particularly situated in the very poorest part of London, with which Her Majesty has very closely identified herself. She has not only been a frequent visitor, but she has succeeded in establishing a treatment for a disease for which practically nothing effective had been formerly done in England, or as a matter of fact, is now done at any other hospital in the United Kingdom.

Queen Alexandra, during one of her visits to this London hospital—when in conversation with some of the heads of the institution, asked if they knew anything of the "Einsen" Light Cure for Lupus. There already existed an institution in Her Majesty's native city of Copenhagen which was fully installed with this system. This she visited, and being much interested in it, was anxious for its introduction into England. No one who has seen those who are suffering from this dread disease could feel anything but the greatest sympathy for them, and the most profound thankful that a more complete cure or alleviation, as the case may be, than had previously been found should be established in our midst. The London hospital was not familiar with the Light Cure, and the Queen then and there offered to pay the cost of the first lamp and its installation. To make this intelligible to the lay reader, Lupus from Latin, lupus, is defined as an eating away of the tissues by germs, and very terrible are the effects of the disease when once it has attacked.

Dr. Einsen demonstrated that these germs could not live under a strong light, and that the rays of the sun or electric light were focussed upon the affected parts, a cure in most forms of the dis-supplemented by a series of single but more powerful lamps, the patent of the hospital, the whole of which are now in daily use. At the present time 180 patients are under treatment, and so many are anxious to become patients that some two old yagas must elapse before the authorities can admit those whom they have already placed upon their books. With the small lamps each patient remains under treatment one hour; with the large ones for twelve minutes only. The great majority attend daily, and some, who have the disease different schools of art, music and science, of this neighborhood were many women students who, coming from homes which were in many cases far distant, had nothing but the doubtful comforts of a second-rate boarding-house, or the loneliness of a single room to look forward to at the end of each day. The natural domestic instincts and a love of home comfort, which are strong traits in the character of Her Majesty, made her anxious for the better lodgings of these students, and it was entirely on her initiative, therefore, that this home was formulated and put upon a sound basis. It is splendidly arranged. There are between fifty and sixty suites of rooms, each suite consisting of a sitting-room and two bedrooms to be shared between two students. There are also practicing rooms for music, art studios, a gymnasium, and a large concert hall; and in addition a fine drawing-room, with good library, dining-room of noble proportions, and other necessary offices. While agricultural affairs are not so good in England as they formerly were, yet there is one branch that Her Majesty has helped very much to keep to the front, namely, that of dairy farming. At Sandringham she has her own model dairy, where the whole of the butter for the royal table is made. "Maid Marion" in the London Magazine.

GERMAN SCHOOL METHOD. An interesting series of experiments has been tried by the school authorities in South Germany to test the faculty of observation as it is exercised by boys and girls. A man dressed as an ordinary workman and with ordinary features was placed in a room by himself. Classes of girls of different ages were sent through the room. All that the teachers told them was that they were to go into the room through one door and out through another. When they returned to their class rooms they were asked to describe the man in the room. Nearly 80 per cent. of the girls confined their attention to the man's clothes; the others described both clothes and features. The same experiments, when tried with boys, revealed the fact that nearly 70 per cent. of them confined their attention to the man's features, the remainder to both features and clothes. Modern Society.

In various parts, are placed under the light two or three times per day. The cure is slow and painless. Very powerful rays are focussed upon the affected parts the burning which would inevitable ensue being counteracted by a lens kept filled with water, duplicate tubes giving ingress and egress.

In recording Her Majesty's work in this direction, one cannot pass without noting the splendid stimulus given to the country at large by her ever-present interest in nursing and nursing associations. Times and again nurses have been cheered with Queen Alexandra's personal presence amongst them, and since the outbreak of the present war, when duties pressed heavily upon Her Majesty, she found time to go down to the London hospital to bid farewell to twenty-six nurses who were going to the front as "Princess of Wales's" nurses. Will the famous hospital ship which bore the title by which Her Majesty was then known ever be forgotten? It has been designated "A Palace of Pain," and palace it was, and from a soldier's point of view fully bore out what one poor wounded fellow said, that "it was worth while being shot at to live in such a home." This was another example to the country, and was one of the pioneers of great efforts for the alleviation of our wounded army.

The education of the people has been another subject upon which the Queen has labored indefatigably. The examples of the throne and those who are near it is contagious. Royal persons, especially those who are beloved by the people, are sure to be copied, and when the Princess of Wales, as she then was, showed an active interest in students of all grades of life, she naturally aroused much public interest in the question, and materially benefited the country at large. The schools at Sandringham are of the best, the soundest curriculum prevailing. It has ever been Queen Alexandra's desire that children and young people should receive thorough instruction in the subjects which would be useful to them in after life. Hence the ordinary schools were supplemented by good technical schools, in which arts and crafts were taught to the boys and youths, and cooking, dressmaking, spinning and a variety of other things in the girls. All over the country green fields have been sought to help those who have the world before them. At South Kensington

GERMAN SCHOOL METHOD. An interesting series of experiments has been tried by the school authorities in South Germany to test the faculty of observation as it is exercised by boys and girls. A man dressed as an ordinary workman and with ordinary features was placed in a room by himself. Classes of girls of different ages were sent through the room. All that the teachers told them was that they were to go into the room through one door and out through another. When they returned to their class rooms they were asked to describe the man in the room. Nearly 80 per cent. of the girls confined their attention to the man's clothes; the others described both clothes and features. The same experiments, when tried with boys, revealed the fact that nearly 70 per cent. of them confined their attention to the man's features, the remainder to both features and clothes. In recording Her Majesty's work in this direction, one cannot pass without noting the splendid stimulus given to the country at large by her ever-present interest in nursing and nursing associations. Times and again nurses have been cheered with Queen Alexandra's personal presence amongst them, and since the outbreak of the present war, when duties pressed heavily upon Her Majesty, she found time to go down to the London hospital to bid farewell to twenty-six nurses who were going to the front as "Princess of Wales's" nurses. Will the famous hospital ship which bore the title by which Her Majesty was then known ever be forgotten? It has been designated "A Palace of Pain," and palace it was, and from a soldier's point of view fully bore out what one poor wounded fellow said, that "it was worth while being shot at to live in such a home." This was another example to the country, and was one of the pioneers of great efforts for the alleviation of our wounded army.

The education of the people has been another subject upon which the Queen has labored indefatigably. The examples of the throne and those who are near it is contagious. Royal persons, especially those who are beloved by the people, are sure to be copied, and when the Princess of Wales, as she then was, showed an active interest in students of all grades of life, she naturally aroused much public interest in the question, and materially benefited the country at large. The schools at Sandringham are of the best, the soundest curriculum prevailing. It has ever been Queen Alexandra's desire that children and young people should receive thorough instruction in the subjects which would be useful to them in after life. Hence the ordinary schools were supplemented by good technical schools, in which arts and crafts were taught to the boys and youths, and cooking, dressmaking, spinning and a variety of other things in the girls. All over the country green fields have been sought to help those who have the world before them. At South Kensington different schools of art, music and science, of this neighborhood were many women students who, coming from homes which were in many cases far distant, had nothing but the doubtful comforts of a second-rate boarding-house, or the loneliness of a single room to look forward to at the end of each day. The natural domestic instincts and a love of home comfort, which are strong traits in the character of Her Majesty, made her anxious for the better lodgings of these students, and it was entirely on her initiative, therefore, that this home was formulated and put upon a sound basis. It is splendidly arranged. There are between fifty and sixty suites of rooms, each suite consisting of a sitting-room and two bedrooms to be shared between two students. There are also practicing rooms for music, art studios, a gymnas-

A DAY DREAM—BY WAH-WAH.

It was all Cai-yow's fault. I had gone to see him about a blue china mandarin. It had been in his window for months, and I had stopped over and over again to look at the thing. It was very dusty, very ugly, and very desirable. The mandarin was worth $15 to a connoisseur. On that particular afternoon, instead of gazing at the thing and walking on, I opened Cai-yow's door and pointed out the mandarin. "I'll give you one dollar?" I said gently. Cai-yow's villainous and yellow face crumpled up in amazement. "You give millionaire tourists and penniless scions of the British nobility. Street cars flashed by, one after the other, with bewildering rapidity. Two small boys were running along shouting the fourth edition of the Times. The telegraph poles had mysteriously vanished. A block once occupied by ancient, unsightly stores, was now the scene of a handsome colonnaded building, over the imposing entrance to which appeared the words "Victoria Grand Opera House." I observed an announcement that Madame Melba would appear that night in "Tannhauser." It was then that I first noticed that the blue china mandarin, which I carried under my arm, was struggling to get his head out of the paper bag that enveloped him. He was also making serious attempts to speak. "You will observe," he squeaked, "that Mr. Jamieson has developed with the city. With your permission we will now visit the Douglas Casino." He had suddenly acquired the manner of a guide.

"Anything to oblige," said I. A moment later I was crossing the James Bay causeway, and admiring the enlarged harbor with its hundreds of ships and many signs of commercial activity on the one side, and the stately C. P. R. hotel, which arose amidst gardens and shrubberies, on the spot that had once been the James Bay flats. "So," said I, "Mr. William, I have after all."

"He did," said the mandarin. "Do you remember his prophecy about grass growing?" He has grown it on the flats (that were) instead of on the streets. I looked longingly towards that hotel. "There was a time," I suggested, "when the C. P. R. hotels kept the real, genuine Schwepp's soda water. Their whiskey was also good."

"Do not delay," squeaked the mandarin, "this sort of thing doesn't last. And it was only one pipe, at that." The Douglas gardens were truly transformed. A handsome Casino in which space was provided for promenade carts and masquerade balls, and numerous booths and side shows, had taken the place of the old Governor's residence, and there were at least a thousand people present just then, most of whom were in the grand hall of the Casino listening to an organ recital. A game called "Petit Cheval" was in progress in one secluded spot, and a number of smartly dressed people were gaily losing their money on the largest of wire games for the banker. I saw the players I espied a former minister, who was backing the green horse with pathetic persistence. It came in last every time.

"I remember," the ex-minister was observing, "that when I went home on that Pook-Bah case I made a trip to Bologna and played Petit Cheval there. It is strange, but the green horse always won there. I backed the red one." "Dear Pook-Bah," remarked a lady, as she recklessly planked down ten cents on the red horse. "Did you ever see 'In Town'?" "Yes," replied the ex-minister. "Do you remember the call boy, Shrimm, in the Bologna scene and that

I observed an announcement

"He'll be onto politics sharply, and you haven't seen half the city yet." We flew across the city as if we were on wings instead of feet, and we landed in front of a magnificent bridge which spanned the Arm. I gazed at it in wonder.

"That," said the mandarin, "is the Point Ellice bridge."

"Never," I ejaculated, "you don't mean to tell me that?"

"I do," said the mandarin.

"Well," said I, "if it wasn't for the exalted company which I am keeping just now, I should say I was blown; tell me, is it steel, stone or reinforced concrete?"

"Neither," squeaked the mandarin. "It is aluminium."

"Can you tell me who did it?" I asked. "I remember a long discussion of a city council meeting. Did the council do it, or did it grow? Or was it Herbert C—t and the Voters' League?"

"Probably C—t," replied my friend, "and now we'll go to the ferry depot of the Coast-Kootenay railway."

I was becoming accustomed to surprises by that time, and I accepted the Coast-Kootenay depot as a matter of course.

"I shall be glad to see it," I said. "Last time I was round this city there was quite a lot of talk about the Coast-Kootenay. There was a mining company than John O—ver wanted to build that line."

"Your mean, Mr. John," sneered the mandarin. "He is minister of agriculture now, you know. But the line was built by another firm, with Jimmy And—son as general manager."

"By that time we had reached the depot. It was a fine affair, situated at Beacon Hill, and presented an aspect of great taste and business. I observed that it was connected with three electric car lines to the city in addition to a double tracked railway line."

"I wonder if Mr. And—son is in?" I said. "He might be dead for a small and temporary reason for old acquaintance sake."

"Better not try," said the mandarin. "Mr. And—son is never to be seen now except in the papers. He made two days for a week, besides, he has a rule never to see newspaper men on any account whatever."

"The next place to visit," continued the mandarin, "is the head office and depot of the Canadian Northern."

"Oh," I exclaimed, "that is too much." And I sat down on the nearest seat, which happened to be the toilet.

"Get up," cried the mandarin in his squeaky voice. "Get up at once, or it will be too late. What is the matter?"

"Nothing," I muttered faintly. "Nothing. Only you might have broken it more gently. Do you say Canadian Northern, or did my ears deceive me?"

"Certainly," I said. "Canadian Northern depot the terminus of the great transcontinental railway, you know?" replied the mandarin.

"Sweet familiar words," I bubbled gently. "Oh, so familiar! But to think that I should live to see the day. Oh, this is too much!"

The mandarin was kicking me in the ribs and incidentally tearing some more of his paper bag. "Get up and come," he said peremptorily.

I struggled to my feet, but the sky was becoming overcast. The buildings seemed to be making the whole city had suddenly begun to revolve around me. A section of the paved sidewalk rose up and struck me on the head. I struggled frantically and got away from it. The mandarin was using out language.

I fled from Government street. "To the Canadian Northern," squeaked the mandarin. "To the Canadian Northern, block head, before it is too late."

But the great city was dwindling before my very eyes. I had reached Douglas street, when it was suddenly borne in on me that things were not what they seemed. The concrete sidewalks had become plank. The tall buildings had vanished. The crowds had melted away.

The mandarin was still kicking and swearing, and every now and then I caught the words "Canadian Northern depot," but they sounded very faintly.

"And then, then out of those protruding rail nails in the Douglas street sidewalk, ran up against my right foot, and I was thrown violently upon the ground, and the mandarin went into exactly 37 different pieces.
